THE UTAH CONTENT BECOMING INTERESTING.

Cannon heard that his wives were to be summoned, so he agreed to admit the facts. The committee will take up the case to-morrow. Cannon came from England in 1842, when 15 years old, with his brother. In 1847 he came to Utah; in '50 to San Francisco. He served as a missionary in the Sandwich Islands till '54. He translated the book of Mormon into the Hawaiian language. He produced a certificate of naturalization dated December 7, 1854, but there is no record of it. The feeling against Mormonism is intense and growing. Last summer, when all Christianity was praying for the recovery of our beloved President, Mormondom was praying for his death, and Guitau is now lauded to the skies by these people, and ever since the 19th of September the Mormon bishops have been flaunting their prayer test in the face of the Gentiles. They are now securing powder and ball, and drilling militia in parts of Utah, and preparing for the rebellion which is inevitable. The only means of averting this is to educate the children. This work can be done by Christian women teachers. There are to-day three thousand Mormon children in the day schools of Utah, taught by these missionaries, who are exercising untold influence not only among the children, but among the Mormon women, and five hundred more teachers are needed. In ten or twelve years these children will be voters and citizens of Utah, and the seed now sown will solve the Mormon question without aid of the arms of the law.

Rev. Dr. Sheldon Jackson, for 23 years a missionary in Utah, Alaska and other parts, preached Sunday night at Washington, in the Central Presbyterian church on Mormonism. He said that 25 years ago Mormonism like a little cloud appeared on the horizon of Utah. It had increased until today nearly one third of the United States is occupied by 150,000 Mormons, who, spurred on by religious fanaticism, are determined soon to rebel, and then fight to the death. We think that we make the laws which govern the territories, but the officials appointed by the President in Utah are mere figure-heads, and John Taylor is the governing power of Utah, sitting in his office in Salt Lake City.

The semi-weekly Standard, published at Santa Ana, Los Angeles county, Cal., was begun last Saturday. It is a neat paper, with a great deal of interesting matter. T. S. Harris, formerly of the Gazette, is editor and proprietor. If the people of Santa Ana want a newspaper, they can find no better man to give it to them than Mr. Harris.

The Index has its own definition of the word Republicanism. It seems to think there is a demand for a Grant paper in Reno, and that one of us should turn over whether we entertain those principles or not.

The Blessed Rain.
SAN FRANCISCO, January 24. Last night and to-day there has been a good rain-fall in the lower part of San Joaquin valley. There has also been plenty in the southern coast counties. In Santa Clara valley and the upper portion of San Joaquin rain has also fallen, but in less quantity.

Making Republicans.
SAN FRANCISCO, January 24. Advice from Sonora says the Compulsory Education Law is being put into force. Schools are to be provided and attendance of children between six and sixteen years of age to be enforced for six months in the year.

The Rails Growing.
SAN FRANCISCO, January 24. Track is laid and construction trains are running twenty-nine miles north of Hermosillo. Track-laying at the rate of a mile and a half a day is being done.

WAS HE INSANE?

Judge Porter's Burning Argument Against the Theory.

WASHINGTON, January 24.

As soon as court opened Judge Porter was about to resume his speech, when the prisoner forestalled him and called out from the dock, "I desire to say that some crank has signed my name to a letter that appeared in a paper this morning. It was without my authority, and I repudiate it. I also want to say in regard to a couple of cranks I understand have been arrested for hanging around here, if they undertake to harm me they will be shot down. I want every one to understand that."

Judge Porter, who had paused to permit this preliminary announcement, began by saying: "The prisoner, as usual, has made the opening speech." Judge Porter said the whole defense had been a shame and an imposture. An imposture which was supposed to have gained a strength of credence from reiteration. "Yesterday," said Porter, "I showed you how the prisoner has belied by his acts the character given him by his counsel. I showed you that he had been a liar, a swindler and a murderer at heart from the beginning. That this man has grown worse every year of his life we have all seen and know."

Guitau—That's bosh, and you know it, Porter.

Judge Porter continued to depict the character of the prisoner and the fallacies of the defense, when Guitau again and again interrupted him, at one time calling out: "Attorney-General McVeagh wouldn't have anything to do with it."

Judge Porter, half replying to the prisoner, said: "This Christian gentleman would have you even believe that Attorney-General McVeagh had dipped his hands in Garfield's blood."

Guitau—Oh that's very fine.

A moment later, allusion having been made by Judge Porter to the present Attorney-General, Guitau howled out:

"He's a high-toned gentleman, and you're a wine-bibber. I've got your record, Mr. Porter."

Judge Porter (with deliberation)—Well, perhaps I am.

Guitau (with drawing accent)—Well, I guess you are, Mr. Judge Porter.

Continuing, Judge Porter said: This Christian gentleman, who prays every night and every morning, would have you believe I am a wine bibber. With great effect and impressive earnestness of manner Judge Porter emphasized by an anecdote which he related, the distinction between the spirits of love and of woe. The latter being expressed in the life and character of the prisoner. The first serious outbreak of the morning occurred when Judge Porter, advertising to a statement of the prisoner's counsel, reiterated the assertions of the prisoner himself that the notes of stenographer Bailey were destroyed by the prosecution because they would have benefited the defense. He denied the right of the defense to expect to see papers prepared by the prosecution solely for their own use. Furthermore, said Judge Porter, there was not contained in them anything, as asserted by the defense, that would have improved their standing in this case.

Scoville insisted upon being heard, and demanded that the Court should stop the counsel from making any such statements as to the contents of papers which had not been in evidence.

Judge Porter insisted that he had a right to deny the statements of the same character made by the other side.

Judge Cox thought counsel had no right to make any statement as to the contents of such papers.

Judge Porter, with much feeling, protested that he had been a practitioner longer than the Judge and had never before heard such a rendering. He was, of course, debarred from taking legal exception, but he must protest against the unfairness of the position which would admit all sorts of statements from the prisoner and from his counsel and yet would debar the prosecution from all opportunity of refutation.

A need, with considerable excitement, if I was Judge I would put him under arrest. Such insolence to the Court should be punished.

Judge Porter renewed the argument and proceeded to discuss the question of reasonable doubt. Referring to the decision of Judge Martin, of New Jersey, which had been re-enforced by a decision in Ohio—He was interrupted by Scoville, who desired to know if arguments were to be heard again upon law points.

A sharp colloquy ensued between counsel, when Judge Porter removed the objection by banding his authority to the Judge, saying, "It will answer every purpose of mine, Your honor, if you should have occasion to rule upon the point."

Returning to the crime and its commission, Judge Porter said:

"Who killed Garfield?"

Guitau—The doctors?

Guitau—Yes; the Lord let them do it to confirm my act.

Judge Porter—Secretary Blaine was responsible.

Guitau—I am morally responsible.

Porter—Mr. Blaine saved his life on that night before the murder, simply by his presence with him as they walked together. He might have saved his life on that fatal second of July, but for the fact that the murderer stole up behind them. Blaine is morally responsible for not preventing the crime. The prisoner confessed that Mrs. Garfield's presence with her husband, on a former occasion, had prevented him from shooting. He was asked if Mrs. Garfield had been leaning upon his arm, instead of Blaine, upon that fatal morning, would you have shot him, and he answered, no. Then Mrs. Garfield is responsible for her husband's death, according to the fallacies of this fallacious defense.

A flight of counsel for the defense painted the President's widow at her daily prayers praying for the acquittal of the prisoner. Judge Porter, in burning language, showed up the profanity and inconsistency of such assertions. Continuing, Judge Porter said: Who else is responsible? John H. Noyes, from whom the prisoner stole his lectures.

Guitau—That is false. I rely on my own brains for my productions.

Judge Porter, continuing: That father whom he struck was responsible. The mother was guilty because she had an attack of erysipelas some weeks before he was born. His drunken, dissolute uncle was responsible for killing Garfield. His cousin Abbie is responsible because from a traveling mesmerist she became an inmate of an insane asylum. She made this murderer insane.

Guitau—There's enough to kill your case by your own showing.

The Chicago Convention killed Garfield by nominating him. The doctors killed him. His nomination and election were two acts of God, and the prisoner would have us believe the Deity, who had thus twice confirmed his choice, found it necessary to correct his labors by appointing this wretched swindler and hypocrite, this syphilitic monstrosity, to murder the President whose nomination and election he had confirmed. The deliberate murderer sits there—pointing at Guitau. Junior counsel has said that you are kings, implying that you may override the law and the evidence in grasping an almost intangible doubt and ignoring the solid structure of evidence of guilt. You are not kings, and the man who told you so is the only man in fifty million who could, or would, recommend Guitau for an office.

Recess.
If the jury believe he was partially or wholly insane, but knew his act was legally or mentally wrong, they must convict him. The jury must not over-ride reason and law, and let murder, rape and arson run riot through the land.

Judge Porter, after recess, dealt with Guitau's cunning and duplicity. He said, "I do not believe in all this assemblage there is one soul that contemplates with such abject terror the possibility of facing his Maker as does this brazen murderer."

Guitau, with the ferocity of a wild beast, fairly yelled, "That's a miserable lie, and you know it, Porter; and you are an infernal scoundrel. I hope God Almighty will send for you soon—both you and Corkhill. Such a miserable stinking whine as that is."

Without noticing the outbreak, Porter continued: "The first question is, was the prisoner insane on July 2d. If not, the case is ended. Second—If he was insane, did he know murder was morally and legally wrong? If not, the jury was by oath bound to convict him. Third—If the jury found he believed God commissioned him to kill the President, unless the jury find such delusion disabled him from knowing such act wrong, they must convict. If such a delusion did exist and was caused by insanity, then, and then only, they must acquit. He has sworn he was able to control his will. If he was partially insane through his own depravity and malignancy, they must convict."

Murder has been in the world since the first born of woman slew the second born.

Reviewing the claim of the defense to hereditary insanity Judge Porter said Mrs. Scoville dared not say her father was insane. The raising of the axe was the only evidence which his sister recalls.

Guitau twisted uneasily, and with some nervousness, in a hesitation of the speech, called out: "The prosecution are making a good deal out of nothing. They are just using the evidence altogether different from what Scoville intended. He never ought to have said anything about it. It just shows how little sense the Scovilles have got."

Judge Porter not having concluded his argument, Court adjourned until to-morrow.

The General Sentiment.

BOSTON, January 23.

At a largely attended meeting tonight in Plymouth church to protest against the prevalence of polygamy in the United States L. M. Merrill presided. The drift of the addresses was that the law which has been a dead letter for twenty years, should be enforced. The jury system should be revised to exclude Mormons; also that the law of evidence be changed or arranged so that the difficulties in the way of proving Mormon marriages may be obviated, and if necessary order a change of venue, so that Congress may remove these criminals to another location for trial. Resolutions were in the same spirit, and the practice of polygamy has for centuries been justly branded with infamy by the criminal codes of every Christian nation as degrading to woman and destructive to the family. It has in all ages been the parent of ignorance, weakness and unnatural vice, and has wrought the ruin of every people which it has polluted; proving itself always and everywhere the deadly enemy of virtue, civilization, good order and free government. Its whole history, with its treasons and massacres, as well as its moral abomination is a disgrace to the American name, and the civilization of the 19th century. Its present condition gives no promise of improvement, but threatens rebellion and civil war in the near future. This tempering and conciliating policy, beginning with the appointment of Brigham Young as Governor of Utah, in 1850, by Fillmore, and the contemptible failure, admits of no further trifling. The time has come for a vindication of decency and the majesty of the law. It is shameful that the depraved public sentiment of a band of lawless fanatics should be permitted longer to defy the lawfully expressed will of the nation.

The Careful Chinese.

NEW YORK, January 24.

There have been conflicting reports regarding the treatment of the Chinese students who were ordered back to China several months ago. Since their arrival home a letter just received from one of the brightest of the boys, who was in the headquarters at Hartford, says that upon arriving at Shanghai the students were all treated very coolly and placed in a damp, dirty schoolhouse, the doors to which were nailed up, with the exception of a front door, which was guarded by soldiers. Even those who had homes were not permitted to go out twice. They were divided into three divisions, ten remaining at Shanghai, twenty-seven going to Tientsin and eleven to Poochow. The writer of the letter is one of the Tientsin Company, the members of which are engaged in different studies. He says the school they occupy is surrounded by a high mud wall and several canals, that the boys are not allowed to go out of the wall or even to visit friends in another school, which is in the same enclosure, that the whole situation is decidedly prison-like. There was some expectation at the time the letter was written that more freedom would be permitted.

A Land Dividend.

WASHINGTON, January 24.

The Senate Committee on Public Lands has agreed to recommend the passage of Saunders bill, which directs the Secretary of the Interior to ascertain the number of acres of public lands entered by the location of military scrip land warrants in all States whose enabling acts of admission into the Union contained a stipulation for the payment of five per cent. on the sales of public lands therein, and which therefore requires the Secretary of the Treasury to deliver to the Governors of such State's Treasury certificates, payable in 30 years from date, and bearing interest at the rate of 365 per cent. per year, and for the full amount of 5 per cent. of the lands so entered, estimating their value at $1.25 per acre. The states named as beneficiaries of the bill are Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Oregon, Nevada and Colorado.

Sporting News.

CHICAGO, January 24.

The famous and speedy stallions owned by one man here are to be sold. Monroe Chief, record 2:18 1/2, Voltaire 2:20 1/2, and Belmore, full brother of Santa Claus. Cause of sale not known.

Budd Doble, the well known horse man, has followed the example of all the rest of his family, and after a long connection with the turf has finally withdrawn from it. He goes into the commission business in the Board of Trade.

Besides the three flyers above mentioned, the following are owned here: Piedmont and Harwood stallions Charlie Ford, Silverton, Sorrel Dan, and Little Brown Jug. The price set on Monroe Chief is $10,000. Since his inability to beat Santa Claus he was sold cheaply to John W. Conley of this city.

WESTERN.

Items From the Day.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 24.

The report of the Signal Service office here gives to-day's rainfall as 40.100 of an inch.

Mayor Blake, Auditor Brickwedel and Judge Halsay are engaged in counting the moneys and securities in the city treasury. The coin will approximate $3,000,000.

At a meeting of the Board of Supervisors held last evening, the petition of the Ocean Shore Railroad Company for a franchise, passed to printing. A meeting is to be held by the Board next Thursday evening for the special purpose of considering the proposition granting the franchise.

A very large and enthusiastic meeting was held last evening at the Grand Opera House under the auspices of the Band League. Messrs. O'Conner and Healey addressed the meeting.

Matilda Schroeder, a German lady, 33 years of age, made an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide by severing the artery of her wrist. She was discovered soon after and taken to a police station and the flow of blood stanchied. Miss Schroeder came from Germany about a year ago, and is a very intelligent and accomplished woman. The cause of the deed is a mystery to her friends.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Trades Assembly, the Chinese Committee of the Assembly presented a report and requested the President to call a special meeting to-morrow evening for the purpose of hearing a report from the Pittsburgh Labor Congress.
